

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA

KAUTANTOWIT'S MECAUTEA, et al. ,	)
	)
Plaintiffs,	)
	)
v.	)	Civil Action No. 1:21-cv-00783 (UNA)
	)
JEFF FRIEZE, et al. ,	)
	)
Defendants.	)

MEMORANDUM OPINION

This matter is before the court on its initial review of plaintiffs' pro se complaint, motion for restraining order and permanent injunction, and applications for leave to proceed in forma pauperis ("IFP"). Plaintiffs, Kautantowit's Mecautea (a 501(c)(3) non-profit organization), Michael C. Minter, Joy Graves, and Timothy Timm, have jointly filed suit against several individual defendants who are apparently affiliated with the Douglas County Oregon Sherriff's Department and a local Oregon Church. The court will grant only Timm's IFP application and deny the remainder of the requests to proceed IFP. Furthermore, the court will deny the motion for restraining order and permanent injunction, and shall dismiss the complaint, for reasons explained herein.

Preliminarily, as to Kautantowit's Mecautea, an entity may generally only appear as a party in the federal courts "through licensed counsel." See Greater Southeast Cmty. Hosp. Found., Inc. v. Potter, 586 F.3d 1, 4 (D.C. Cir. 2009) (citing Rowland v. Cal. Men's Colony, 506 U.S. 194 (1993)); see also Am. Airways Charters, Inc. v. Regan, 746 F.2d 865, 873 n.14 (D.C. Cir. 1984) ("[A] corporation, which is an artificial entity that can only act through agents, cannot proceed pro se." (internal quotation marks and citations omitted)); Diamond Ventures, LLC v. Barreto, 452

F.3d 892, 900 (D.C. Cir. 2006) (same); Franklin v. Vilsack, No. 11–0206 (D.D.C. Apr. 15, 2011) (denying IFP status to plaintiff in his capacity as an officer of a non-profit development corporation which, as an artificial entity, cannot proceed IFP).

The only complete application is filed by Timm and the remaining two are muddled, at best. Minter’s undated IFP application is devoid of certain required information, including, for example, an estimation of various debt/expenses and disclosure of any sources of income. It appears that Minter purports to have neither debts or expenses, nor sources of income, and if that is, in fact, the case, additional information is necessary to explain these unusual financial circumstances. Graves’s application is devoid of the same information, and further indicates that she may receive disability or worker’s compensation benefits, but then no details relating thereto are provided. Without properly detailed IFP applications, individually executed and filed by each plaintiff, the court lacks the information by which it may assess their respective financial status at this juncture. See generally, 28 U.S.C. § 1915(a)(1).

Even if Timm were proceeding solely for himself, the complaint falls short. The complaint goes on for pages alleging a vague and attenuated “conspiracy to murder.” Rule 8(a) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure requires complaints to contain “(1) a short and plain statement of the grounds for the court’s jurisdiction [and] (2) a short and plain statement of the claim showing that the pleader is entitled to relief.” Fed. R. Civ. P. 8(a); see Ashcroft v. Iqbal, 556 U.S. 662, 678-79 (2009); Ciralsky v. CIA, 355 F.3d 661, 668-71 (D.C. Cir. 2004). The Rule 8 standard ensures that defendants receive fair notice of the claim being asserted so that they can prepare a responsive answer and an adequate defense and determine whether the doctrine of res judicata applies. Brown v. Califano, 75 F.R.D. 497, 498 (D.D.C. 1977). When a “complaint [] contains an untidy assortment of claims that are neither plainly nor concisely stated, nor meaningfully distinguished from bold conclusions, sharp harangues and personal comments [,]" it does not fulfill the requirements of Rule 8. Jiggetts v. D.C., 319 F.R.D. 408, 413 (D.D.C. 2017), aff'd sub nom. Cooper v. D.C., No. 17-7021, 2017 WL 5664737 (D.C. Cir. Nov. 1, 2017). The instant complaint falls within this category. Additionally, the ability of this court to exercise personal jurisdiction any of the defendants is entirely unclear. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(2); International Shoe Co. v. Washington, 326 U.S. 310 (1945).

Finally, the motion for restraining order and permanent injunction advances the same incongruous allegations, which do not warrant injunctive relief. "The standard for issuance of the extraordinary and drastic remedy" of a restraining order or an injunction "is very high . . . and by now very well established." RCM Techs., Inc. v. Beacon Hill Staffing Grp., LLC, 502 F. Supp. 2d 70, 72–3 (D.D.C. 2007) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). Plaintiffs have abjectly failed to meet this standard, and the motion is therefore also denied.

For all of these reasons, all of the IFP applications are denied, other than the application filed by Timm. The motion for restraining order and permanent injunction is denied, and the complaint and this matter are dismissed. A separate order accompanies this memorandum opinion.

Date: May 4, 2021

/s/
_____
TIMOTHY J. KELLY
United States District Judge